

FASCINATING NEW BOOK ON HOUND OF THE BASKER VILLES PUBLISHED

A fascinating book concerning the creation of Conan Doyle's The Hound Of The Baskervilles has been published by OAKMAGIC PUBLICATIONS, a British folklore publisher.

In this unusual collection of fiction and non-fictional essays about Doyle's crime masterpiece, Kelvin I. Jones, author of The Sherlock Holmes Murder File, explains the inception of the author's gothic story. The book also shows how the novel was written at a time of crisis in Conan Doyle's personal life and demonstrates how the dark themes of the story reflect his preoccupations. Kelvin I. Jones, who is a crime fiction writer and one of the leading authorities on the Holmes stories, also reveals how the novel began life as an East Anglian legend when Doyle was on holiday in Cromer.

This wide sweeping survey of one of the most famous novels in English Literature includes an original short story by the author based on the legend of Black Shuck, East Anglia's hell hound, which features Conan Doyle as the master sleuth solving a mysterious murder in Cromer. The book, "THE PHANTOM HOUND" is available by post only, direct from the publishers, OAKMAGIC PUBLICATIONS for £6.00 (includes postage) by logging onto the website at www.oakmagicpublications.com.
